SUBJECT: Public Use Files

USE OF THE DATA AND CITATION

The attached files have been created by Mathematica Policy Research, Inc. (MPR) for public use by the research community. The study under which the data were collected was funded by the Smith Richardson Foundation, the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, and the Carnegie Corporation.

Findings from the data, including a description of the study design, are reported in Paul Decker, Daniel Mayer, and Steven Glazerman, "The Effects of Teach for America on Students: Findings from a National Evaluation." Princeton, NJ: Mathematica Policy Research, Inc., June 2004.

While these data, information, and teacher questionnaire are proprietary to Mathematica Policy Research, Inc. and are copyrighted materials, as they derive from research grants and contracts funded by The Smith Richardson Foundation, The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, and The Carnegie Corporation, it is Mathematica's intention that they be used for academic, research, or charitable purposes. Consequently, anyone who wishes to use these data for such purposes is hereby granted a non-exclusive, royalty free, perpetual license to use any and all of the data contained in this public use file, provided that the data or information is not used for any monetary gain or purpose, and provided further that it is not used for the purpose of disparaging any of the funding agencies or Mathematica. It is understood, however, that in the granting such license, Mathematica accepts that independent researchers may make inferences that we have not made, or arrive at and publish different conclusions. Mathematica asks that any publications or dissemination of data or information from this public use file be given appropriate copyright notice, and credit to the funding agencies, as well as a disclaimer that makes clear that neither Mathematica nor it funding agencies The Smith Richardson Foundation, The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, and The Carnegie Corporation have any responsibility for the research analysis or conclusions reflected in any publication based on these data. Finally, and in consideration of and for the use of the data and information contained in this public use file, user agrees to provide three bound copies of any paper, report, publication or similar product, in substantially the form it is prepared for publication or dissemination, regardless of the medium in which it is originally MEMO TO: Users of MPR's TFA Evaluation Public Use File

CONTENT OF THE DATA FILES

Filename	Description
public_use.dta	Student data, including test scores and school records information
public_use_tchr.dta	Teacher survey data, including teacher mobility codes added by MPR

All files are in Stata Version 7.0 format. Teacher survey data can be merged with student data using classid (see below for details). Because some classrooms had multiple teachers (e.g. when teachers left during the year because they were reassigned or quit their jobs), users should decide which teacher to use when merging with student data.

NOTES AND OTHER EXPLANATION

Confidentiality and identifiers

MPR has stripped any information that can be used to identify the students, teachers, or schools. In the public use files, we combined those who are neither black nor white in a single race category, to avoid potentially identifying individual students or teachers. However, ethnicity (whether Hispanic or not) is included and reported separately from race. We have also stripped the specific district names. The files use arbitrary ID numbers for students (mprid), classrooms (classid), and schools (schoolid). The first digit in the schoolid variable refers to the region, so, for example, all schools whose schoolid begins with a "3" are in the same region.

Classrooms can be uniquely identified by the classid variable. Classrooms are grouped into blocks, which usually consist of a grade within a school, within which MPR conducted random assignment to TFA or control classrooms. So each block, identified by a unique blockid, has at least one treatment classroom and one control classroom. In a few cases there are two blocks in a school in a grade. For example, in one school there were four classrooms, consisting of one treatment and one control class that were for the higher-achieving students and one treatment and one control class for the lower achieving students. In another school, the two blocks in the same grade consisted of a pair of English-only classrooms and a pair of bilingual classrooms.

Because 8 classrooms out of 100 experienced turnover during the year, individual teachers are uniquely identified by a combination of classid and teacherno. The teacherno variable is equal to 1 for the teacher who was in the classroom at the beginning of the year, 2 for the next teacher who replaced the original teacher if she left during the year, and 3 if a third teacher was needed to take over if the second teacher left during the year. For the analysis, we had to select one teacher to use as the teacher for that classroom. For most analyses we used the first eligible teacher. A teacher was considered eligible if she was in the classroom for at least six weeks.

Test score variables

There are two sets of test score variables, one for the fall pretest and one for the spring posttest. The two sets of variable are identical, except the pretest variables are prefixed by "pre".

All test scores are given in several formats:

na = number of items attempted nc = number of items answered correctly (raw score)

ss = standard score

ge = grade equivalent

npr = national percentile rank

nce = normal curve equivalent

Tests were given in two subjects, reading and mathematics. The subject scores are suffixed by _r and _m, respectively. For example, "ge_m" is the grade equivalent score for mathematics. The first grade reading tests were scored separately as vocabulary and word analysis, using the suffixes _1_vocab and _1_word, respectively and the corresponding _r variables were set to missing. Therefore, the vocabulary and word scores should be used instead of the variables suffixed with _r for students in grade 1.

MPR administered Riverside Publishing Co.'s Iowa Test of Basic Skills (ITBS) to most students in the fall and spring. A small portion of students were tested in Spanish using Riverside's Spanish-language test, Logramos. The indicator variables spanish and prespanish can be used to identify the particular test for posttest and pretest, respectively. Both tests were published and scored by Riverside Publishing, but users should exercise great caution in combining the ITBS and Logramos scores, particularly the NCE scores, because the scores are not equated. That is, they are scored relative to two different norm groups, not a common norm group.

The test form and level at pretest and posttest are indicated in the data, see testfrm and testlyl.

Teacher survey variables

A copy of the teacher questionnaire is also attached to this documentation. Variables names are derived from the item numbers, and the variable values correspond to the codes next to the survey responses on the questionaire. Responses to questions such as college major/minor, and Other-Specify were given numeric codes, and the list of codes and meanings are attached. Missing values indicate there was no response to the question. The year of birth question (d5) has been converted to age during year the survey was completed (d5_age). The distribution of colleges and universities can be provided upon request, but cannot be linked to classid.

MPR added some variables to describe the teacher mobility, including the first and last months in which they taught (firstmo and lastmo) and their eligibility for the survey (survelig). One teacher who served as a substitute in two different classrooms in the study is listed twice. Teachers who did not complete a survey were included in the dataset, with values set to missing for the questionnaire variables.

DEFINITIONS FOR THIS SURVEY

Teaching Certificate (also called Teaching Credential or License) – A document issued by a State Board of Education which permits the holder to be employed in the public school system as an educator. Teaching certificates may be obtained through either traditional or alternative education programs.

Traditional teacher certification program – An educational program in which a candidate completes the necessary study leading to the teaching certificate prior to beginning employment in a school. Higher education institutions deliver the training, as part of a bachelor's or master's degree program.

Alternative teacher certification program – A program designed for individuals who already have a post-secondary degree and an academic background in the area they wish to teach. Minimal to no education courses or training are required prior to beginning employment in a school. Candidates often take courses and receive training while teaching. Training is delivered by higher education institutions, state agencies, or local school districts. Full certification is received one to three years after beginning the first teaching job.

Student teaching (also called practice teaching) – A full day school-based experience for students enrolled in a post-secondary education institution that is supervised by both a certified experienced teacher and a university or college supervisor. It is a requirement of pre-service teachers who have completed the education coursework leading to a degree and are seeking certification or licensure to teach in a public school.

Professional development activities – Educational activities in which teachers participate to enhance their career growth. Such activities may be formal or informal experiences in the form of inservice workshops or continuing education courses. They are designed for teachers to develop their knowledge in a variety of areas, such as in-depth study of a content area, teaching strategies, education standards, student assessment, applications of technology to instruction, or classroom management.
